ABSTRACT

Privatization programme was introduced in Nigeria to encourage competition, effectiveness, job creation, and revenue generation. This study, therefore, sought to reflect on the objectives of the programme. The study obtained primary and secondary data from various sources. The primary data were presented in tabular form while simple percentages were used in analyzing the data. It was revealed that the performance of the privatization programme is a mixed bag of limited success and continuing challenges. It was therefore, recommended that there is the need to put in place an enabling environment in the country for the programme to succeed.
